Across the train tracks – to make students get their message across to their partner by any means possible.

Students pair up. Stand opposite one another, across the room. (so have 2 lines of students)

One student in each pair given a passage/message that they need to relay to their partner (could be a recipe, description, appointment details, etc.) (need about 3-4 different sets so not giving same instructions as person next to them)

On the bell students shout and use body language to give the info. to their partner who writes down the message, they can ask for clarification if they wish. The winning pair is the quickest, with 100% accuracy.
